

Tom Abbott

Tom Abbott is Dean of Libraries and Distance Learning at the University of Maine at Augusta. UMA is a commuter and distance learning institution with about a third of its 2700 FTE students taking courses across the state in by television, video conference and Blackboard.

Tom also has been responsible for UMA's reaccreditation processes for the last 15 years. He is known nationally for his work with the Association of College and Research Libraries.

Tom received his Ph.D. from Boston College in higher education management with a minor from BC's Business School.