

Ann DeMarle

Ann DeMarle directs Champlain College's Emergent Media Center and the Masters of Fine Arts in Emergent Media (EMC) and the founder of the Game Development and the Multimedia undergraduate degrees. Upon the receipt of the Roger H. Perry Endowed Chair, she launched the EMC with a mission to bring Champlain students' media and technology expertise to businesses and non-profits looking to explore and create new solutions. Key projects include UN sponsored BREAKAWAY—a game to address violence against women, two RWJ funded games for Cystic Fibrosis patients, and an IBM Project in virtual world space.
