

Becky Wai-Ling Packard

Becky Wai-Ling Packard is a Professor of Psychology and Education and the Co-Director of the Weissman Center for Leadership and Liberal Arts with responsibility for Teaching and Faculty Development Initiatives. In her role, she is working on faculty advising, peer mentoring structures, and curricular innovations that improve retention and learning outcomes. She earned a Ph.D. in Educational Psychology and has expertise in mentoring and college persistence, with a focus on first-generation college students, transfer students, and science-related fields.