

A. James Lee

A. James Lee, Ph.D., is Associate Professor within UMass Lowell's Department of Community Health and Sustainability, and he directs the University's graduate program in Health Informatics and Management. He has a doctorate in economics from the University of Wisconsin. He has worked in the health care field for nearly 40 years and has a valuable mix of experience in government, industry, management consulting, public health and health services research and evaluation. He is former Vice President of Health Economics Research (subsequently acquired by Research Triangle Institute), one of the country's leading health policy "think tanks." He has also worked for Arthur D. Little, Abt Associates and a Blue Cross & Blue Shield plan; and he served as Deputy Director of the Maine State Planning Office. He was a founder of DxCG, Inc., a healthcare risk adjustment software company.