

Richard Garrett

Richard Garrett is Vice-President and Principal Analyst at Eduventures, Inc., a research and consulting firm specializing in higher education. He leads Eduventures Online Higher Education Learning Collaborative (OHE-LC), a membership program for institutions seeking to grow their online enrollment and enhance their operations. The OHE program is a unique source of intelligence on online higher education enrollment and programming trends, evolving consumer demand, school positioning and operational strategies. Richard has more than 16 years' experience researching higher education trends worldwide, particularly online learning, non-traditional students, internationalization, and commercial activity. He has published a wide-range of reports on online higher education, including the annual flagship Online Higher Education Market Update and the E-Learning: Where are we now? (a book commissioned by the OECD), and is widely quoted in the media.

He is on the board of the New England College of Business, a wholly online, regionally accredited institution, and the board of UExcel, a credit-by-examination partnership between Excelsior College and Pearson Education.

Prior to joining Eduventures in 2005, Richard was Deputy Director and co-founder of the Observatory on Borderless Higher Education in the United Kingdom. The Observatory tracks global developments in higher education around new technology, cross-border delivery and nontraditional schools. He has also worked as a researcher at the University of Surrey and the Quality Assurance Agency for Higher Education. Richard earned a B.A. and an M.A. from King's College, University of London, as well as a Post-Graduate Certificate of Education from the University of Cambridge.