

Alan Carbery

Alan is the Associate Director of Champlain College Library in Burlington, Vermont, where he has responsibility for the College's award-winning, blended, information literacy program. His interests include reflective practice, teacher development, active learning pedagogies, assessment, blended learning and inquiry-based learning in information literacy instruction. Prior to joining Champlain College in 2013, Alan worked in a number of specialist and academic libraries in Ireland, where he originates.