

Clay Hensley

In his role as Senior Director, International Strategy & Outreach, at the College Board, Clay Hensley supports the international engagement of College Board members. His work focuses on helping higher education institutions attract qualified international students. Clay also promotes access to AP, SAT, and the College Board's college planning resources in more than 180 countries and territories outside the U.S. These world-class programs help to advance the aspirations of students and educators globally. Clay presents frequently on issues impacting international education, including cross-border student mobility trends. Clay was awarded the annual Distinguished Service Award by the Overseas Association for College Admissions Counseling (OACAC) in 2013.