

E. Edward Klotzbier

Ed Klotzbier joined the College Board in March 2012 as Vice President of the New England Regional Office and has since expanded his role to include leading the Higher Education Academic Relations Team. In his dual role, Klotzbier oversees the College Board’s educational programs and services across K-12 and higher education in the six New England states and the organization’s outreach and engagement efforts with presidents, provosts, deans and faculty at member institutions. He also manages strategic partnerships with national higher education associations and leads a team dedicated to working with college faculty and other academic leaders on Advanced Placement credit and placement policies. Klotzbier previously served as Vice President for Student Affairs at Northeastern University. As both administrator and educator, he spent over a decade on the transformation of Northeastern to a modern and diverse residential campus community, focused on strategies around student success and retention. Klotzbier holds a juris doctorate from New England School of Law and a bachelor’s degree in public administration from Northeastern University. Prior to his experience in higher education, Klotzbier worked in corporate affairs for Mellon Financial Corporation, with the law firm of Palmer & Dodge, and in Massachusetts State Government.
