

Sharon Belden Castonguay

Sharon Belden Castonguay is the Director of the Wesleyan University Career Center. She also co-chairs the Benchmarking Committee for the Liberal Arts Career Network. She received her doctorate in human development and psychology from Harvard, where her research focused on how businesspeople make career decisions. Previously she has served as the Director of the Graduate Career Management Center at Baruch College's Zicklin School of Business, an assistant director for PhD career advising at Harvard, and an assistant director of graduate career services at the Boston University School of Management, where she also taught a course in career development. Through her career consulting practice she has worked with many other top universities, and has been an invited speaker at Columbia, Dartmouth, Harvard Medical School and Princeton, among others. She holds an EdD and EdM from Harvard, an MA in education from the University of Michigan, and a BA in government from Smith College.