

Jamie Feild Baker

Chief Academic Officer and Director of the Grauer Institute

Jamie Baker has responsibility for all aspects of teaching and learning at Pomfret. A substantial part of her role is to create transformative learning practices for students, faculty, and the school's leadership. Over the last few years, Jamie has guided the school's implementation of an extensive amount of change which has transformed the learning environment and culture of the school. In addition to her regular responsibilities, Jamie is co-chair of Pomfret's NEASC Accreditation Self-study process. Jamie is a 1984 graduate of Georgetown University with degrees in economics and finance. Her career experience includes financial planning, investment banking and sales, and entrepreneurial ventures in hotel and real estate development. Before coming to Pomfret in 2014, Jamie served as the executive director of the Martin Institute for Teaching Excellence in Memphis. She has served many schools as a nationally recognized and sought-after expert in innovation and school transformation.
