

Ronald G. Cantor

President of Southern Maine Community College

Ron Cantor has been President of Southern Maine Community College since 2011. He holds degrees from Syracuse University (Ph.D., cultural foundations of education/history), the University of Nebraska-Lincoln (M.Ed., educational administration), and the University of New Hampshire's Whittemore School of Business and Economics (B.S., administration). With 40 degree and certificate programs SMCC serves 6,000 students on two full-service campuses plus 10 satellite sites and online. It is Maine's largest, oldest and most diverse community college as well as the second largest undergraduate institution in the state. Dr. Cantor is active with numerous community organizations and initiatives including those committed to student success, economic and cultural development, health care and history.