

John Clements

John Clements is Principal of Nipmuc Regional High School in Upton, Massachusetts, a 1:1 learning school that is committed to its core values and driven by its beliefs about learning. He acts as a leader of the school's 1:1 learning program, encouraging technology integration to communicate, collaborate, and innovate. He supported the establishment of dynamic STEM and humanities programs that connect students to colleges, universities, and professions. Mr. Clements is a commissioner for NEASC's Committee on Public Secondary Schools and is the recipient of NEASC's Jacob Ludes III Leadership Award. He is President of the Blackstone Valley Education Foundation, a nonprofit that supports innovative programming that promotes 21st century skills. He has presented his school's accomplishments at the National Science Teachers' Association Conference, the Learn Launch Conference, the Leading Future Learning Conference, the MSSAA Summer Institutes, the Massachusetts STEM Summit, and the National Consortium of Secondary STEM Schools Conference.
