

Cidhinnia M. Torres Campos

Cidhinnia M. Torres Campos holds a degree in Ecological/Community Psychology from Michigan State University. She has worked extensively with a wide variety of public, non-profit, and education organizations on issues related to positive youth development and academic success. Cidhinnia has a broad and comprehensive expertise in evaluation of clinically based, faith-based, and community-based programming, agency and regional accreditation, learning outcomes assessment, and institutional research. She has presented and provided training across the country on theories and principals of community and educational research and assessment, strategic program development, and evaluation strategies and implementation. Cidhinnia has teaching experience in a variety of areas, including psychology, research methods, statistics, and management principles. Currently, she is the Director of Accreditation and Institutional Assessment and Acting Director of Institutional Research at Wentworth Institute of Technology in Boston, MA.