

Timothy Bowman

Tim Bowman joined the School of Engineering and Applied Sciences as executive dean for administration and finance in February 2012. Prior to this position, he was associate dean for operations at the Harvard Kennedy School. He teaches courses in strategic management and higher education management at the Harvard Extension School.

Tim previously held the position of vice president of finance and administration at Chatham University, where as chief financial officer and chief operating officer he was responsible for campus master planning, enrollment management, human resources, facilities, security, and auxiliary services. He has also been the vice president of finance and administration at Neumann University, and assistant treasurer at Philadelphia University. Bowman also serves on the Commission Institutions for Higher Education and the board directors of the Eastern Association of College and University Business Officers (EACUBO).

He received his bachelor's degree in accounting from Elizabethtown College, his MBA with a concentration in finance from Philadelphia University, and has attended the Institute for Educational Management at the Harvard Graduate School of Education.