

Kimberly Goff-Crews

Kimberly Goff-Crews serves as Secretary of the Yale Corporation, Yale University. She supports institutional governance, oversees the University Chaplaincy, and ensures the alignment of university-wide policies and procedures to maximize support for all students. She is also responsible for the conduct of official university functions, including commencement. She is a graduate of Yale College and Yale Law School. After several years in private law practice, she returned to Yale as Assistant Dean in Yale College and Director of the Afro-American Cultural Center. She focused on enhancing the African American student experience at Yale and improving retention rates for women and students of color in the science, technology, engineering, and mathematics fields. Before returning to Yale in her current position, she worked at Lesley University and as Dean of students at Wellesley College.
